

Geography Industry

Several types: metropolitan crowns in an outlying urban areas have declined and in the process of replanting are recipients of PEO also industries. En case involves some traditional industries relocated from metropolitan core areas, seeking to reduce costs and do negocios. Estas industrias are located in industrial estates. In other cases the crowns to attract innovative companies that are installed to technological parkes, b) peri-urban fringes: in the transition zone between the urban and industrial rural. Son pekeñas, thinly capitalized and in need of unskilled and flexible. They engage in traditional production jobs to outsourcing or processing recourses surrounding polygons are in the attached vessels. C) industrial development axes: located along major thoroughfares. At the national level are the main axes of the Ebro Valley and mediterraneo. A regional and district level some axes were developed, as the network environment that extends acia madrid castilla-lamancha and indoor exercise: along major roads (highway Tordesillas Valladolid-Palencia). D) rural areas: pekeñas industries, thinly capitalized and in need of unskilled labor, Brat and more frequent cases flexible. Los: pekeños workshops, urban enterprises relocated or promoted by autoctonos. Tb business suergen business innovadoras. Areas and declining industrial axes: x areas marked industrial decline, located in the Cantabrian coast and some specific sites. Causes: Specialization mature sectors, characterized large dependientes. Cremimiento manufactures and urban SMEs very disorganized. Implications: deindustrialization, demographic decline by emigration and lost competitiveness. Some areas are resuscitative (Basque Country). Areas of industrialization and low induced: Induced: Aragon, Castilla Leon, Andalucia quei industriales. industrias enclaves were established in provincial capitals and traditional to industries. Low: Castilla la mancha, Extremadura, Balearic and traditional to canarias. Sectores, low competitiveness.